TELEGRAPHIC NOTES.

OAKLAND, Cal., March 18.—John Brady, a painter by trade, shot and killed Mary Brady, his wife, and then committed suicide in the Church of the Immaculate Conception in this city. Brady and his wife had been separated about two years. Brady was about forty-five years of age and his wife the same.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Colo., March 18.—It has been quiet here to-day and it is thought there is little likelihood of serious trouble. Some of the miners, however, are desperate men and not a few of them went through the horrors of Coeur d'Alene, as they have often admitted. The troops arrived early in the morning but the soldiers have done nothing but lie in camp. Adjutant General Tarsney and Brigadier General Brooks have their headquarters at the Palace Hotel.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 18.—The total attendance at the Midwinter Fair yesterday was 69,445, greater than any day except Wednesday, when it was above 72,000. The average attendance at the Fair is gradually increasing, and it is probable it will be much heavier from this time forward. Sousa's band to-day began a five weeks' engagement at the Fair.

DENVER, Colo., March 17.—The Union Pacific depot was entirely destroyed by fire. The fire started in the offices at 12:30 this morning and spread with such rapidity that by the time the fire department arrived the blaze lit up the lower part of the city. An explosion occurred and the fire got beyond control. The building was of stone and was owned by the Union Depot Company. The loss is about $500,000; fully insured.

FAIR ROCKAWAY, N. Y., March 17.—Considerable dissatisfaction was manifested by the inhabitants of the village to-day when several men pulled down the American flag from the flagstaff on the town hall and raised in its place a green one. The action of the men soon attracted a crowd of citizens, who demanded that the stars and stripes be replaced, but when a permit from the village president was shown the angry crowd turned their attention upon the Board of Trustees, and within an hour the stars and stripes were flying again, but not on the same staff. It had been carried to the top of the bell tower twenty feet higher.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 17.—Should the Bland Seigniorage bill become a law, the coinage of the $55,000,000 of silver bullion will have to be done at the mints at Philadelphia, San Francisco and New Orleans, the only mints in operation. The Philadelphia mint could turn out $1,000,000 per month, the San Francisco mint about the same, and the New Orleans mint about $80,000. The San Francisco mint, however, has only $16,000,000 dollars in silver bullion on hand, and the New Orleans mint $250,000, so that after the supply at these mints is exhausted, the remaining $30,000,000 will have to be coined at Philadelphia. The whole time necessary to coin the seigniorage is approximately two years and two months.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Colo., March 16.—It is reported that six deputy sheriffs were arrested and disarmed by the town authorities at Altman, a few miles from here this evening, and that several hundred armed men are making threatening demonstrations against the miners who returned to work yesterday on the terms offered by the mine owners. Superintendent Traveron of the Victor mine at Altman has just arrived here with the news that the Victor miners had been driven off by a large force of armed men. Troop A, mounted are coming to the camp as rapidly as possible.

OTTAWA, Ill., March 16.—The attorneys for Prendergast, the assassin of Mayor Harrison of Chicago, made application to the Supreme Court this morning for a supersedeas to stay the sentence of death against their client, pending application for a new trial, alleging numerous errors in the trial.

LOS ANGELES, March 16.—General Fry's army of unemployed, organized to march on to Washington, is a grotesque failure. The City Council, the Board of Supervisors and officers of associated charities met this morning and decided to relieve all meritorious cases of destitution, but to recognize no organization of unemployed. Five hundred dollars was subscribed for immediate use. Work will be supplied on the streets, and the vagrant law be enforced. The authorities will disperse any army or like organization. The army numbering about 300, on learning the result of meeting, abandoned their barracks and marched out of the city, apparently beginning its great march. They had no organization and no leadership. Their leaders are said to have looted the treasury and the main body was without funds or rations. A large majority were without blankets. Before they had gone five miles many dropped out and retreated to the railroads in hopes of catching trains.

Emotional Element in College Sport.
The Boston Transcript makes bold to say that when we read that one "really manly" fellow in the Harvard crew the other day put his head down into his hands after his side had been beaten in the race at New London and boobyhoed like a child in the face of all the thousands of spectators we realize that there is a prodigious emotional element in these college sports.

The Pilgrim's Jewelry.
If the new yacht Pilgrim, which was built to defend America's cup, fails to win, it will not be for lack of attention to the regular sea dog superstitions. A ring from Mr. Stewart, a moonstone scarfpin from the captain and various odds and ends have been deposited at the heel of the mast for good luck.

A Cheap Lot of Old Stocks.
At the auction sale, the other day, of the personal property of the late Governor Hale of New Hampshire, stocks having a par value of $3,700,000 and promissory notes with a face value of $57,000 were sold to the highest bidder for less than $7.—New York Tribune.

ORIENTAL ART IN COLOR.

Brilliant Tints Combined So as to Have a Restful Effect on the Eye.

The reason that colors in an oriental brooch or bracelet are so perfect is the same reason that an old oriental carpet is better than any other. An Asiatic dislike to be dazzled, to be blinded with glare, to have his eyes hurt and his brain heated by unsubdued effects of light. Consequently, though he dyes his wools in intense colors, having few others, he so combines them, so mixes them with black and that dark cream of which Europe has never caught the secret, that the total result is restful, and the very idea of glare or of full daylight on the patterns is entirely absent.

It is precisely the same with oriental jewels. Their natural glare is kept down by combination and want of polish. The Asiatic, who carved in jade and sank deep inscriptions into sapphires, could have faceted precious stones as well as the cutters of Amsterdam, who until lately used no machinery. But he did not desire to do it. He wanted subdued effects and made of the garnet a caruncle—which is a miracle of color without glare—or he cut off, as we have seen in many emeralds, a mere corner, so the beholder, instead of being bothered with flashing green, should peep at will into green depths.

We do not say he was altogether right—as regards the diamonds he was entirely wrong—but we may rely on it that he knew his business, and when he failed that he intended to fail. His intense appreciation of turquoise was due not only to admiration of its color, which can be matched only by one or two flowers, but to the fact that it is the one gem that for all its brilliancy of color does not flash. To this hour the high class Asiatic loves the catseye as the European never can because the light in it gives no pain, but reveals itself through a sort of dusky shade.

The European has made lovely jewels and will make lovelier ones, but he has never made jewels like those of the Asiatic, who with illimitable art can take from gold all its glitter without diminishing by one iota the perfection of its color, and will hand you a bit of enamel in which the green is as bright as the emerald, the red as fiery as the ruby and the whole as restful to the eyes as a piece of turf.

The oriental jeweler has another merit, and in it lies the secret of a possible great development in the demand for European jeweler's work. He always gives to his jewels a certainty of value. His gold is gold of unadulterated purity, his silver truly silver of the standard, his gems the stones they are said to be, and his work paid for at an understood and invariable rate. The consequences are that he makes little and that the market for his commoner wares never ceases, jewels being as much property as English sovereigns are, equally portable, nearly as capable of concealment and as fixed in value.—American Jeweler.

A Sunday Scene in Central Park.

Winding paths leading out of the Mall in the Central park were crowded Sunday with "young men and maidens, old men and children," all faring peacefully and enjoying the smell of the flowering shrubs and the sight of sunshine and shade upon the green slopes. Past a great, fragrant spruce bush came the twisted figure of a hunchback, whose feet also were deformed. He moved slowly and painfully, but his face was bright, and he was having fun in spite of his limitations. He talked and laughed with a half grown boy by his side. A group of three young men with flashy clothing and dirty hands came along. The largest of the three slapped the dwarf's head rudely and sent his hat spinning upon the grass. The hunchback uttered a cry of pain and astonishment. His assailant roared with laughter.

A stocky young man, with his hands in his pockets, was strutting leisurely down the path. As the hunchback passed he planted a blow in the hunchback's face. The man was lifted off his feet and tumbled sprawling on the gravel. He arose, hot with wrath, and turned to see what had hit him. The stocky one stood in his tracks, with a look of placid contentment on his face. The hunchback stared in wonder. The stocky one resumed his stroll. Three girls who had seen the interview waved their handkerchiefs at him and smiled.—New York Times.

"The" Hague.
Did you ever stop to ask yourself or your knowing friend the meaning of "The" in the place named The Hague? If you are looking for something that will knock the above mentioned knowing friend off his feet, just ask him the significance of the three letters quoted. When he fails to answer the question, tell him that the The as it occurs in the instance cited is simply the Anglicized form of the Dutch word "S Gravenhage," or "S Gravenhage," either of which, in the Dutch language, means "the count's hedge" or "the count's grove" or "woods."

Originally the location now occupied by the city of The Hague was the hunting grounds of the counts of Holland. About the year 1240 a palace was built in the grove. Presently a village sprang up around the palace—still it was called "The Count's Hedge"—and finally and lastly a large city, which in the Dutch language has its original significance, but which in modern parlance has been evolved into "The Hague."—St. Louis Republic.

Cheap Hats For Artists.

All the young women in an art school are doing their studying this summer under the shade of Japanese peasant hats. These are mere disks of loosely plaited straw about two feet wide and cost 10 cents. They have no peak nor crown and are just as suitable for use as table mats as for anything else. To make hats of them it is only necessary to sew a ribbon to one surface of them, leaving its two ends free to tie under the chin as bonnet strings. Thus they become hat and parasol in one.—New York Letter.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Correspondence of THE RECORD.

WASHINGTON, March 13, 1894.

The tariff fight between the Democratic free traders and the Democratic home protectionists having been won by the latter, the battle is now temporarily transferred to the full Senate Committee on Finance. There are eleven members of this committee six Democrats and five Republicans, but one of the Democrats, Vance of North Carolina, is away. If the Democrats can succeed in putting a substitute for Vance on the committee, they will probably make the attempt this week, unless they can get Vance to come back, they will have a majority of one; otherwise the committee will stand a tie politically, and nothing can be done without the consent of at least one Republican. If they do not accomplish anything it will be simply because nothing can be accomplished.

It is not yet certain that the revised bill can be passed by the Senate notwithstanding the concessions made to the kickers although, of course, the probabilities are decidedly in its favor; but there remain several elements of doubt, either of which may result in defeating the bill. Two of the Populists, Peffer and Allen, have declared their intention to vote against it and the votes of Senators Hill and Murphy are not assured for the bill; but even with the loss of those votes it is still possible for the Democrats to pass the bill, if Kyle votes with them, and it is understood that he will, having for good and sufficient reasons connected with the distribution of official pie given his promise to that effect.

Representative McKee, of Ark., acting for those House Democrats are opposed to the action of the Democrats of the Senate Finance Committee, in putting a duty on sugar, has introduced a bill to abolish the bounty on sugar and to place sugar of all grades on the free list. These men say they intend to make sure of free sugar by tacking this bill as a rider onto some of the regular appropriation bills, but it is doubtful whether the Democratic leaders will allow them to do so.

There is considerable speculation as to whether Mr. Cleveland will veto the Bland bill for the coinage of the seigniorage, which will certainly pass the Senate this week. Senator Vilas, who is about as close to Mr. Cleveland as anybody is, says the bill will be vetoed, but others who are also close to Mr. Cleveland say that he will allow the bill to become a law without his signature, with the hope that it will remove the silver question from the coming Congressional campaign; his idea, according to these gentlemen, being that the mint will be kept busy for several years to coin the $55,000,000 silver dollars required by the bill, and that it will be useless to further agitate for the free coinage of silver until the mints have got through with that provided for in this bill. If your correspondent were disposed to make a wager on this matter he would not hesitate to give odds in favor of a veto. Mr. Cleveland will, in my opinion, be only too glad of an opportunity to hit the silver men who he has never liked.

A small number of Senators appeared to think that Senator Peffer's action in offering a resolution for the investigation of the charges made against five Democratic Senators, of having used their positions to obtain information as to what was being done in connection with the sugar clause of the tariff bill, in order to speculate in sugar stock, was undignified, but a majority is hardly likely to take that view of the matter and Mr. Peffer says he is determined that the resolution shall not be pigeonholed. The surprising thing to most people was that one of the Senators charged with speculation did not ask for an investigation.

A Racking Cough

Cured by Ayer's Cherry Pectoral
Mrs. P. D. JALL, 217 Genesee St., Lockport, N. Y., says:

"Over thirty years ago, I remember hearing my father describe the wonderful curative effects of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. During a recent attack of La Grippe, which assumed the form of a catarrh, soreness of the lungs, accompanied by an aggravating cough, I used various remedies and prescriptions. While some of these medicines partially alleviated the coughing during the day, none of them afforded me any relief from that spasmodic action of the lungs which would seize me the moment I attempted to lie down at night. After ten or twelve such nights, I was

Nearly in Despair, and had about decided to sit up all night in my easy chair, and procure what sleep I could in that way. It then occurred to me that I had a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. I took a spoonful of this preparation in a little water, and was able to lie down without coughing. In a few moments, I fell asleep, and awoke in the morning greatly refreshed and feeling much better. I took a teaspoonful of the Pectoral every night for a week, then gradually decreased the dose, and in two weeks my cough was cured."
